MuseFire Productions - - “Stupid Frailty”

MuseFire Productions, a three year old, D.C. theatrical company, is featuring playwright and performer, Laura Zam, talking about her dating experiences, in a hilarious show called, “Stupid Frailty.” Having performed in New York City, Czechoslovakia and elsewhere, the 40-something Zam, tells the audience right out that she is not a beauty, but has done a lot of internet dating, and lucky for us, shares those experiences and observations. After recovering from a car accident that almost killed her, she went after men with even more enthusiasm. For example, in her impishly appealing way, she tells of dating an old guy, Steve. With all his medical problems, she felt like a goddess. And handsome Mario, with the crotch thing. There’s more in this human interest monologue, “Stupid Frailty,” through July 31 by MuseFire Productions at the Sweet Mango Café, 3701 New Hampshire Ave. NW. There’s a nice Jamaican dinner included also. Call 1-800-494-TIXS and check the website: www.musefire.org.
